

18 Ways to Bomb Your Presentation

A webinar on how to speak so people listen—and you shine

July 24, 2014 1:30 – 2:30 PM ET

When you're speaking to an audience, little things make a big difference – especially when they are little mistakes.

Unfortunately, there are 18 seemingly tiny blunders you can make without ever even realizing they are blunders (like waiting for these or speaking without this). Make one mistake and you lose a little credibility. Make a few and your entire presentation bombs.

But it doesn't have to! Let an expert help you "bomb-proof" your presentation.

Register now for 18 Ways to Bomb Your Presentation. From keynote speeches to seminars, "The Work-Life Expert®" Jeff Davidson has delivered over 800 presentations with rave reviews. Now, he shares his secrets with you, revealing how to avoid 18 common blunders before they destroy your credibility and leave people snoring.

Instantly improve your speaking presence and power. From what not to do the night before, to how to prepare yourself and your slides, you'll replace blunders with a blueprint for speaking success. These are tried and true tips that will work for anyone who needs to engage an audience effectively, right from the very first moment.

Reserve your space now to remove the fear-of-bombing anxiety from every presentation you give, including how to:

- Understand your audience and the best way to connect with listeners
- Organize and prepare materials for a crystal clear presentation
- Design presentation slides that engage your audience effectively
- Use pre-speaking strategies to present material like a pro
- Capture your audience's attention quickly—and keep it
- Use humor appropriately
- Check A/V and other equipment and when to do it
- Exit gracefully—without rushing off the stage

Bottom line: No more risking humiliation because little mistakes add up to huge disaster.
